HESTEAD ASSOCIATION!

OF

EAST PORTLAND, OREGON.

OW PREPARED TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS their Stock.

lication for ONE HUNDRED SHARES was made the books were opened, and a large number of have been taken.

following extracts from the Oregonian and Bulle, convey a good idea of the plan and workings of sociation, the location of the land, etc., etc.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

s association of whose organization we gave ount a few days since, is now ready to dis- of shares. As it is with one exception, (the ation of that kind in this city, it may be nough to state what are its purposes, and nner in which it is proposed to conduct its tions. The purposes of these Homestead iations are not at all speculative in the or- y sense of the word. They are dependent profits of their investment upon the same- dvance in the value of their lands, consc- upon the co-operation of many individuals rcholders—and the advance on values of all unding lands by reason of the expansion of ation and demand for room outside of, but near, the city. The Riverside Homestead iation has a fraction over one hundred and y acres of land situated just south of ays on the east side of the river, the west- boundary line being about one mile from the landing at East Portland. The tract lies e strip along the Wallamet river, half a mile gth, and another strip along the Oregon and egon railroad, half a mile in length, the two being connected near the middle by two of blocks (with a street between them,) the e forming a figure not unlike the letter H. divided into 74 blocks, 200 feet square (with ts running at right angles) and 30 fractions, ots, along the river front. The shares num- 900, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that re thus represents nearly a lot with an undi- interest in the 30 fractional lots. The 30 frac- l shares are to be sold off at the proper time, the benefit of the Association, shareholders ng in for the proceeds in proportion to the ber of shares held. When all shares are d and the Association shall deter- ine to do it, the choice of lots and blocks be put up at auction to the highest er, the proceeds of such sales, after deducting original price of shares or lots, to be divided ally among the whole number of shares. If a person wants a particular lot or block, s willing to pay $100 or $800 premium (more as the case may be) he pays it and takes lot or block as his individual property, that thing being divided among the whole number shareholders. It will be seen, therefore, that thing is co-operative, and all interests mu- No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other sharehol- der. There is no chance for loss, and property, by some chance, should depre- below the first actual cost. Whether this is to happen in the case of this particular of land must be judged by each for himself- considering the steady and unprecedented ad- on real estate in this city and neighbor- , and East Portland and vicinity, for the year or two, it seems hardly possible that s to go back.

the Riverside Association all proper precau- ns have been taken to guard against spolies of shares. No person is allowed to more than the number of shares representing blocks, or twenty-four lots, and votes de- ining the operations of the Association are ioted in the same manner. The buyers of es may pay down $60 per share, which will pt them from all assessments, or they may $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per e, payable with the first installment, being e in this latter case to another (and only one) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the ment of the shares in full, with the a- ments above, the holder is entitled to his certificate his proportion of all the profits accrued from duties. No officer of the Association receives pay for services except the Secretary, who $25 per month; so it will be seen that the ness must be big bu- that part of the tract lying along the river is ut platens, nearly level, about 66 to 80 feet e the water. There is no part of the front of blocks but commands a splendid view of land and the river for miles up and down m. That part of the tract lying along the oad is, every foot of it, of the richest loam and adapted to gardening purposes. A beau- little stream of pure water runs through at the entire length of the wing of the tract ing the means of irrigation, and power suf- ot to supply pure water to every part of the tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional in the entire tract. Under all these advan s, it would seem impossible that there should by chance of loss to shareholders. Within a each shareholder, if he chooses, may get a ot title to as many lots as his shares may esent, or he may continue his interest, undi- d, with the Association while the organiza- may exist.—Oregonian.

E RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

have been led to make these remarks from the that the subject of making homesteads on the out- s of this city and East Portland, is being thoroughly ssed here among all classes, and one homestead the ouble," just south of East Portland—has already n established. The site selected is a tract of land ly little over a mile south of the ferry landing. It d like the letter H, one side of which, a half mile gth, borders on the river

m this portion of the homestead, which is elevated or fifty feet above the river, can be had an exten- iew of Portland, East Portland, the shipping, and Willamette river for several miles. The land is very , and is partly covered with light fir timber. A of land just wide enough for two rows of blocks, ad avenue between them, connects the west prong H (which has already been described) with that o est. This last tract of land is in a beautiful state of cultivation, which is now under a high state of cultivation, gh its whole length runs a cross brook, the water hich is clear as crystal. With a hydraulic ram the ciation proposes to have water conveyed through n every portion of the homestead.—Daily Bulletin.

An Unprecedented Triumph—A Retrospect.

[From the Albany (N. Y.) Journal.]

The precise Republican majority in the next Congress is not yet accurately determined. But it will obviously range from fifty to sixty. This may justly be regarded as a brilliant and unsurpassed triumph. It is almost literally an unprecedented victory. Since the ascendency of the Democratic party was first shaken thirty years ago, no party has achieved such a success in the second year of its administration.

In 1846 the Whig party swept the country with the Log Cabin and the song of "Tippecanoe and Tyler too." It was an overwhelming victory. Harrison had 234 electoral votes and Van Buren only 60. Yet in the Congressional elections of 1842, the Democratic party achieved as signal a triumph, and John W. Jones, the Democratic candidate, was chosen Speaker of the House of Representatives by 120 votes against 59 for John White, the Whig nominee.

In 1844 the Democratic party carried the country and elected Polk to the Presidency. But two years later, in the second year of his Administration, the Whigs carried a majority of Congress and elevated Robert C. Winthrop, of Massachusetts, to the Speakership. In 1848 the Whig party elected General Taylor to the Presidency. But when the Congressional elections of 1850 came around the Democracy were again triumphant, and Linn Boyd, of Kentucky, was chosen Speaker. In 1852 the Democracy elected Franklin Pierce President by a very decisive vote. But the new-born Republican party soon developed commanding power, and after a stormy and prolonged contest General Banks, of Massachusetts, was chosen Speaker of the second Congress of Pierce's Administration.

The Democracy were again successful in the Presidential election of 1856, choosing Mr. Buchanan. The Congressional elections of 1858 were, however, hotly contested, and William Pennington of New Jersey, the Republican candidate, was made Speaker of the House. In 1860 the Republican party for the first time elected a President, and Abraham Lincoln entered the White House. The rule still held. No intelligent person will forget how badly the elections of 1862 went. Notwithstanding the war, we lost New York. We lost everywhere. Our majority in Congress was greatly reduced. Had it not been for the secession of the Southern States we should have been in the minority. In 1864 we carried the country again, but Andrew Johnson, who became President by the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, immediately went over to the Democracy, and the Administration was practically Democratic. The old result followed. In 1866 the Republican party swept the country, and elected an overwhelming majority in Congress. The next corresponding period brings us to the present time.

It thus appears as an almost invariable law that the party holding the Administration loses its second Congress. Making proper allowance for 1862, there has not been a single exception to this rule from 1840 to the present time. Arguing from this remarkable fact, a politician might have predicted Democratic success this year with almost as much reason and certainty as Leverrier proclaimed and discovered, upon Bode's famous law and without any other basis, the existence of the planet which bears his name. Under such circumstances the Republican victory, which gives us from fifty to sixty majority in Congress, may justly be regarded as a brilliant and transcendant triumph. It establishes with conspicuous and unparalleled distinctness the firm hold which the Republican party has upon the confidence of the country. It demonstrates the other thing. No reader has failed to remark, in pursuing this retrospect, that the party which carried the second Congress of the Administration has almost invariably carried the next Presidency. To this rule there has been scarcely an exception. And so the general triumph of the Republican party in 1870 presages its grander triumph in 1872.

Schurz on the "New Party."

A correspondent of the New York Herald has interviewed Senator Schurz, the man who led the recent "bolt" in Missouri, and who was reported to be working for the formation of a new party. In response to the correspondent's question as to his opinion of the idea of starting a new party, Schurz answered:

There is no necessity of starting a new party. Let the present one undergo a little overhauling and it will be good enough to run many years yet. We are always calling upon the Democracy to abandon dead issues and reconstruct their platform. Suppose we apply a little of that advice to ourselves which we give so freely to them. Let us reconstruct a little. Why can't we go in earnestly and as one man for a total reform in the civil service and the revenue and a total wiping out of disabilities for complicity in the rebellion? We want a broad, generous, comprehensive policy, commensurate with the aims and aspirations of a great country. The Republican party must address itself to the task of interpreting the great elections of this nation and cast aside all paltry feelings of partisan vindictiveness and selfishness. It has done nobly as it is, but there are indications that some of its members are satisfied with what has been accomplished and are indifferent as to the future. They ignore the vast work that has yet to be performed, and appear to think our mission is finished. This would be a fatal spirit, if allowed to creep into our ranks to any considerable extent; but, nevertheless, the evidence of it can be found in the results of the late elections. We have a great deal yet to do, and I think a slight increase in the Democratic Congressional representation will act as a wholesome stimulant toward rendering us a little less hasty and self-sufficient. We shall engage ourselves this session with questions of domestic policy, and I have hopes that much more will be done than there was last session. The reconstruction of the South kept a great deal of legislation back, and now that it is fixed we must endeavor to make up for lost time by attending to business which is of vast interest to the whole people of the country, namely, finance and the tariff.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN DATES TO DECEMBER 2.

Another Report of recent Battles. The French Claim Successes.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—A World correspondent at Tours on the night of the 30th, says all is well with the army of the Loire.

The Prussian dispatches concerning the fighting on the 28th are wholly fallacious. Daurelles holds well in hand in the immediate vicinity of Orleans the Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth and Eighteenth Corps, numbering in all 12,000 men, besides the Twentieth, Bourbaki commanding, and the Twenty first Corps. The whole of these forces were well concentrated during the recent fighting, and inflicted on the enemy greater loss than they themselves suffered. There is perfect confidence in Daurelles.

The government has ordered the immediate construction of eleven entrenched camps.

Singular Rumor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The Herald's correspondent at Versailles sends the following singular rumor: Turkey not being disposed to resent the note of Russia, Bismarck is favorable to England obtaining a protectorate over the Suez Canal, in consideration of England's own road to India being secure. Russia may do what she pleases with Turkey. This is another blow aimed at France.

Sorties from Paris.

VERSAILLES, Nov. 30.—A lively fire was maintained all last night from forts around Paris, and this morning the garrison made sorties at various points on the Seine and Marne. Prussian positions were attacked at 11 o'clock in the morning, and a sanguinary battle took place, in which the Wurtemburg troops were mainly engaged, supported by portions of the 12th, 2d and 7th corps. Fighting ended with the night. The enemy were everywhere repulsed.

Losses in late Battles.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Prussian losses, in killed in the battle before Amiens, was 24 officers, and 1300 privates.

The French army of the north is in a state of disorganization. The citadel of Amiens capitulated after a short resistance, in which its commander was killed, and 400 prisoners were taken. A detachment of Garibaldians, from Pasques, was converted into disorder by flight.

French Claim an Advantage.

TOURS, Dec. 1.—The department of Cher is declared in a state of siege. It is announced that Gen. Ducrot, with 100,000 men, made a great sortie from Paris yesterday, and crossed the river Marne. The movement was completely successful. Details of the action are momentarily expected.

Telegram from King William.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—King William telegraphed to the Queen on the 30th the following: The sixth corps yesterday repulsed a sortie. Over 100 French were captured. There were several hundred dead and wounded. Sorties were made on the position of the Wurtembergers and Saxons at Corneuil, Champigny and Villers. The positions were held by the Prussians. Sorties at the same time were made northeastward of St. Denis against the fourth corps, but were repulsed.

Another Sortie Defeated.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A telegram from Chatteau le Pipie, November 30th, says: Today the second and third Wurtemburg brigades, with the 7th Prussian, defeated a sortie of the French in the direction of Montmesalle. After four hours' hard fighting 30 prisoners were taken.

Dispatch from Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—Operations commenced yesterday at different points.

Ducrot occupied Montrieul but subsequently evacuated it, the French renewing the attack in the South.

Report that Trochu has cut through the Prussian Lines.

LONDON, Dec 2.—Dispatches to the Stock Exchange say that Trochu has cut through the Prussian line on the north of Paris in such force that the Germans were driven from their position with a great rout.

A great battle is now going on west of the city.

Particulars of Recent Sorties.

TOURS, Dec. 2.—The Moniteur says on the morning of the 29th a sortie began at Choisey le Roi and Chevilly, the battles there lasting through the nights of the 29th and 30th.

Ducrot crossed the Marne and occupied Westry and engaged the Prussians in battle from Champagney to the Marne. He then crossed the Marne by eight pontoons, maintaining his position, and took two guns.

French Claim a Great Success.

LAVEL, (France,) Dec. 2, evening.—Dispatches from Gambetta announce a great success at Paris, where sorties were made in force, repulsing the Prussians along the line many miles in extent. Cannon and many prisoners were captured by the French Commander, by Ducrot, Vennoy, and Trucho. Gambetti, who announced the victory, says that the effect was that the Prussians abandoned Amiens, and are marching back to Paris. The battles before Paris began on the 29th.

The garrison remained outside, in positions taken from the Prussians. Gambetta says the army of the Loire successfully resisted an attack on the left and right wings, and moved forward on all sides.

German Account.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—The following is received: A great sortie took place against the Prussians, on the Wurtemburg front, supported by a cannonade from fort Troilla, Ducrot commanding, leading 120,000 men, until 11 o'clock, when they were successfully repulsed by the 7th corps. The Wurtembergers were reinforced subsequently by cavalry and artillery, and the attack was repeated at 3 o'clock, and again repulsed. Prussian loss trifling.

VERSAILLES, Dec. 1.—The French loss in dead, wounded and prisoners, in yesterdays sortie was severe. They have just asked a truce for several hours to bury their dead. The Wurtembergers lost 40 officers, and 800 men. One brigade of the 2d corps lost 2 officers and 700 men. Sonson's loss is not reported.

Another Dispatch from Tours.

TOURS, Dec. 2.—Gen. Chauncy reports a successful advance of the French which left yesterday. The French carried the first Prussian line, and afterwards their positions at Nouville, Villa Pirte, and Farrailles. The Prussians retreated on Leigney and Chateau Cambersy.

Miscellaneous Dispatches.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A special to the Times, dated Berlin, Dec. 1st, says nearly the whole French forces are concentrated between Blois, Tours and Orleans. If defeated, a retreat on Lyons is probable. That place is strongly fortified and provisioned.

TOURS, Dec. 1.—The rumor of successful sorties caused great excitement. Gambetta was called out, who praised Trochu and Ducrot. He said Amiens was evacuated on the news of a victory.

TOURS, Dec. 1.—In the fighting with the army of the Loire the Prussian right was at Chateau Dun extending through Jeineville to Fourey, thence to Pithviers and Beaune, and the second line at the rear extended from Pontainbleu via Montaran to Villenaut and Troyes, forming the Prussian line on the east.

The Vienna Press, in announcing that France participates in the conference, says that Austria declines having the conference discuss preliminary questions involving other questions than the treaty of 1856. A pacific solution of the Euxine question is assumed at St. Petersburg. Rumor asserts that the conference will avoid reference to Gortschakoff's circular, and that a new treaty will be framed omitting reference to the neutralization of the Euxine.

VIENNA, Dec. 2.—The Press says the resignation of Kuhn, Minister of War, has been accepted. Marshal Edelsheun is likely to succeed him.

BERNARNT, Dec. 1.—Paligno is chosen President of the Senate, and Cosaoli of the Chamber of Deputies.

Revenue Reforms Defined

A set of political philosophers sometimes calling themselves financial reformers and sometimes revenue reformers are just now making some noise in the country Generally their ideas are visionary and utopian and they fail to state with any precision what they would have or what they want to accomplish But one of the principal plans the Evening Telegram published in New York at last makes an intelligible proposition It is that the revenue reformers what they must endeavor to accomplish in the next Congress The first great step to be taken is --

The passage of a declaratory resolution that the tariff shall be a tariff for revenue solely and that every such article taxed shall pay duty at that rate which shall procure the largest amount of revenue from each article

Now the Democratic party has been coquetting a great deal with the 'revenue reformers.' How does the above programme suit that party? The tariff is to be adjusted in a way that will yield most revenue to the government and so cause the people to pay the largest amount of taxes that can be obtained from them This is called 'revenue reform' Is it the entertainment to which the Democracy supposed they were invited? How does this sort of "free trade" please them? There are such indispensable articles as sugar coffee and tea, from which much more revenue might be collected than is collected now if a higher duty were laid on And on all such articles of actual necessity the people the revenue reformers according to the statement of their organ would lay higher duties, so as to collect the utmost sum the very last dollar that could be obtained, for the rule is that each article should be taxed at a rate that will pay the largest amount of revenue There are many articles that the people must have and this rule would enable the revenue reformers to levy a much higher duty on all such articles than is paid at present This is a very singular theory of free trade The revenue reformers are fine theorists and proclaim many glittering generalities, and when they announce such a doctrine as this and call it "free trade," the reader can only wonder at the logic, and at the intellectual resources of the men who handle it.

Democratic "Fine Writing."

The Albany Democrat last week saw fit to publish the following.

President Grant, in order to carry the recent elections in favor of the Radicals, and thus secure an endorsement of his infamous "policy," ordered an exorbitant assessment to be levied upon the clerks and underlings in the various Government departments at Washington and elsewhere, to be used for election purposes in the several States in which the campaign was then in progress, and he threatened with instant removal those who refused to "come down" with such amount as was deemed necessary to encourage vigorously prosecute their nefarious object. Acting under the direction of the heads of Departments, the clerks all "knuckled," with the exception of those in the Interior Department, of whom Mr Cox, of Ohio, was Secretary This gentleman, acting with an independence which did him great credit informed the employees under him that a refusal to pay such assessment would not be considered a cause for their removal so long as he had control of the Department. Knowing that, as a consequence of his manly assertion of "reserved rights," his official head would drop in the Executive waste basket, Secretary Cox sent in his resignation and retired from a position which his attempt to preserve from ignominious corruption rendered entirely untenable After his resignation and to vindicate himself from the aspersions which were cast upon him by the unscrupulous minions of the President, Mr. Cox published a letter explaining the cause of his action and casting a withering rebuke upon the corruption of a President who would stoop to such base acts to gain votes with which any other President would have scorned to interfere.

This is a fine story, and is 'done' with all the rhetorical embellishments that adorn the best productions of writing that appear in the Democratic press One fact, however is to be noted in connection with it which will be deemed material by many persons, but which the Democrat would probably consider unimportant and trifling This fact is that there is no truth whatever in the story. From first to last, it is a tissue of unsupported assumptions and bald untruths. President Grant ordered no assessments to be levied on clerks. He threatened none with dismissal in case they did not 'come down.' Not one word, either by letter or conversation, ever passed between the President and Secretary Cox on this subject, and the Secretary makes no pretense of anything of the kind That is an invention of the Democratic press The only difference that ever arose between the President and the Secretary in regard to the clerks was this Secretary Cox had issued an order forbidding the clerks to go home to vote The clerks complained of it, and their complaints came to the ears of the President, who said that in all the other Departments no departure had been made from the old usage of allowing the clerks to go home to vote, and that he did not think it wise to make this discrimination in the Interior Department. Secretary Cox thereupon resigned. This is the whole story of his being a martyr to "civil service reform"

The French, according to dispatches which we publish this morning, claim great successes But we do not think that their claims are entitled to very much credit The Germans do not admit that the sorties of the French from Paris have been successful But if the French are to be believed they have gained great advantages and one dispatch announces that at some places in France Te Deum is being chanted It would be prudent to wait for further news before accepting these reports as reliable But even if a portion of Trochu's forces have succeeded in cutting their way out of Paris can they by uniting with the other forces of France succeed in raising the siege of the city We think not

The total immigration to this country during the fifty one years ending on the 30th of September last amounted to 7 441,619 Immigration reached its highest point in 1854, and then gradually fell off for four years when it again showed an increase The Statistical Bureau estimates the value of each immigrant at $1 000 and that consequently they brought into the country over seven billions of dollars, but all such calculations are and must be simply chimerical The value of this addition to our population and this reinforcement of the physical and moral forces of the country can no more be estimated by figures than the worth of one grand life or example to mankind at large can be measured by tape or yard stick

The economy per day during the last fiscal year in the current expenses of the Government, as compared with those of the year before is reported at $222 440 Meanwhile the taxes have been reduced and the debt has been steadily diminished In the face of this the cavilers are well to pronounce the Administration a failure just as vehemently as they please The New York Tribune, want to do says the New York Tribune, want to do says this sort of failure

Statistics of Chinese Immigration

Last spring Governor Grover sent his message of the State Legislature in which he stated that the statistics of Chinese immigration in the country and ruin white laborers will not be received with much effect in future political campaigns That sort of stuff has had its day To show how utterly absurd it is we give the following statement of the number of arrivals of Chinese in this country since 1851 taken from the records of the Department of the Interior

|---|---|
| 1851 | [illegible] |
| 1852 | [illegible] |

| 1867 | [illegible] |
| 1868 | [illegible] |
| 1869 | [illegible] |
| 1870 | [illegible] |

The aggregate of arrivals thus far is 10 774 During the estimated number of deaths and returns to China it would appear that there are now less than 10 000 Chinese in the United States

The above table shows that the number of Chinese arrivals during ten years of Republican rule has been but little greater than the number who arrived during the preceding ten years when the Democrats governed the country This rather spoils the effect of the frequent assertions that Democrats discouraged Chinese immigration, while Republicans have encouraged it

Since, according to the State organ the late Democratic Legislature was so corrupt as to engender and inaugurate that foul disease which the physicians cannot name and which is now scattered nearly all over the State the people doubtless are beginning to reflect whether they should send another such Legislature to the Capital

Forty five majority in the next national House of Representatives of the United States—for while it may be more it cannot be less—is another keen commentary says the Washington Chronicle of the 19th ult upon the herculean efforts and sounding predictions of the Democrats

The ship which Meigs & Gawley are building at Port Madison Puget Sound, will be of 1 200 tons burden, and will be finished next spring It is to be called the Northern Pacific This we believe, is the largest vessel ever built on this coast

Practical Economy

THE RESULTS OF AN ECONOMICAL ADMINISTRATION OF THE GOVERNMENT—NEAR SIXTY NINE MILLIONS SAVED DURING THE PAST YEAR—AN ABSTRACT OF TREASURER SPINNER'S ANNUAL REPORT

From a statement prepared by Treasurer Spinner, which will accompany his report to Congress, it appears that the total increased receipts and decreased expenditures of the Government amount during the past year to $68,734 020 29 Referring to this gain the Treasurer says

"In order to explain more clearly to such persons as are not in the habit of thinking of money by the millions of dollars, the great saving that has been made to the Treasury of the United States in the last fiscal year over the one preceding it, the statement is here made that after deducting fifty-two Sundays and four legal holidays from the 365 days 309 executive days remain in the year in which time the saving of $68 734,020 29 was made, that the average saving on the working days of the fiscal year that closed on June 30, 1870, over those of the previous year, was over $222,444 per day, being over $9,268 per hour, and over $154 per minute being more than equal to the extra dropping of $2 50 into the coffers of the Treasury in every second of the time

The Treasurer in his report again speaks of the inadequacy of the pay of his clerks and officers, and claims that this fact demoralizes the business and is detrimental to the public service He thinks the clerks in his office are entitled to more pay than in the other Departments, because they are held personally responsible for all pecuniary mistakes He believes the best reform in the civil service is to increase the compensation He speaks of the suffering in the families of many clerks, and details the troubles they incur in keeping out of debt He says that many of them have to go to the pawnbroker and that if they are suddenly in want of money they borrow of sharpers, giving a lien on their pay and pay ten per cent a month as interest Several pages are devoted to arguments for increasing salaries The number of persons now employed in his office is three hundred and seventy four the number employed when General Spinner came to office was twenty The following details are also given in the report

CONSCIENCE FUND

Amount received from various persons from December, 1863, up to and including June 30 1869, $113 991 81 and during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1870 $3 406 03 total amount received since November 30, 1863 $117,397 84

ARMY AND NAVY PENSIONS

The following is a statement of the pensions paid to soldiers and sailors for the eight years from 1863 to 1870 both inclusive

ARMY PENSIONS

1863, $932 886 29 1864 $4 902 0[illegible] 01
1865, $9 191,137 02, 1866, $13,484 665 19
1867 $17 443 089 69; 1868 $23,987 469 14
1869 $23,623 650 47 1870, $23,105,733 13
Total, $128,575,391 24.

NAVY PENSIONS

1863 $185,488 35 1864 $184,355 04 1865 $7 22 424 59 1866 $3,371 053 33 1867 $3,328 795 36 1868 $880 828 69 1869 $[illegible]991 34 1870, $476 328 84 Total, $16 19[illegible]350 65

Fourteen million dollars from the above amount of pensions for the year just closed was placed to the naval pension fund Two hundred and ten thousand dollars have been placed to the same fund in the last year that are not included in the last item of the above table The Treasurer also presents a table showing the expenses for the army during each of the years from 1860 to 1870, inclusive, the total of which for the eleven years, reaches the sum of $3 408 620 034 79 The naval expenditures for the same period were $190 [illegible]1 060 64 A table is also inserted showing the amount of paper money redeemed and destroyed since 1861 This includes demand notes legal tender notes compound interest notes fractional currency national bank notes And the total amount destroyed reaches the enormous sum of $3 437 853 424 27

The German Democrats have but cold comfort to give their brethren of France In the Berlin Volks Zeitung the Prussian Radicals lately gave a lengthy response to the appeals made to them by various French writers and political societies In this production occurs the following Cease to beguile a fanatical multitude with dreams of victory from which it will awake to find itself in an abyss of despair. By yielding a few fragments of territory, which were formerly Germans France will be hardly diminished, will be little if at all less powerful, liberty which develops all the strength of a nation will make your country strong' There is a good deal more to the same purpose and heartless as the advice may seem it is difficult to imagine what other could have been expected The Prussians have sense enough to subordinate all political issues to a common patriotism—a feeling which in the present stage of progress appears to be more vital than that of the common brotherhood of man The French unhappily for themselves have had too little of this practical wisdom —N Y Times

There is something more than retributive justice in the spectacle of a colored Senator in Congress in the place filled by Jefferson Davis and a colored representative in the same body from Charleston, the capital of the State of John C Calhoun.

THE TERRITORIES

The debt of Boise county Idaho as shown by the published report of the Auditor is $ 2 630 25 with assets of but $1, 438 15

A Seattle paper says We understand that the product of the Seattle coal mines is in increased demand in San Francisco, the only difficulty being an inadequate supply of the article It now commands two dollars per ton more in that market than the Coos Bay coal

The $20 000 damage case at Boise City wherein Miss Emma Cox was plaintiff and the Northwestern Stage Company was defendant resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $15 250 damages The jury was out about five hours The Northwestern Stage Company will appeal the case to the Supreme Court

The Boise Democrat of the 26th ult reports that Last Thursday a large train of mule wagons passed through town en route for Colorado Baker county Oregon They were loaded with provisions and tools for the Burnt River Ditch Company This Company of Chicago are pushing work forward as fast as possible At the present time some 1 000 men are at work on the various ditches and by spring we will hear good reports from there It is a shame that these mines have been kept back so long and by one man The people of Eastern Oregon can thank this Chicago Company for their enterprise in buying the ditch and pushing it through

CURRENT NOTES

The State arsenal at Hartford Conn has just been cleaned out of all the guns of various outdated patterns accumulated for twenty years past The entire lot of 3 900 has been sold for $21 000 above expenses, and the arsenal will be stocked with first class arms Connecticut is due in arms from the General Government is about 16 000

An Indianapolis editor recently discovered that there was an acre and a half of government land in one of the counties bordering on the Ohio river He paid $3 [illegible] and that land was his Going down to see what he had purchased the county surveyor showed him an elegant sand bar in a bend of the stream just above low water mark

Ward the Yankee who excited by his bravery the admiration of the Celestials, is not worsh pped as a god by that people as has been stated Instead of being canonized, Ward's widow hasn't been able to get his over due salary of $150 000 Truly as was remarked to W Nye on a former festive occasion, the heathen Chinee is very peculiar

It is understood that an effort will be made at the coming session of Congress to have a bill passed providing for additional compensation for certain Census Marshals and Assistant Marshals The Commissioner of the Census thinks that the money originally appropriated was sufficient but it was unequally divided Marshals and Assistant Marshals in sparsely settled districts received no larger pay than those in thickly populated districts

Cincinnati, always jealous of Chicago, has opened a Divorce Court, which holds its sessions once a week Thirty cases is an average day's work, and the sessions are numerously attended One of the cases recently was that of a woman asking to be divorced from her husband, who was also her own uncle The consanguinity however, was not the reason assigned The husband was old and indifferent, and the wife thought that if she had a share of his money she could return to Europe and marry a more suitable man She got the divorce.

It has just been decided by the Superior Court in Cincinnati that a wife has a vested right in her husband's society and companionship and can maintain an action for the loss thereof It appears that the husband had an adopted daughter who was married, and gradually he absented himself from his own house until at last he resided permanently with these people The wife brought suit against her husband and the other two for the loss of his company and society Upon demurrer the Court ruled that the action would not lie against her husband, but her right of action against those who drew away and harbored her husband was undisputable Persons will, therefore take notice that if they harbor husbands they are liable to suits by the wives to recover damages

WAR MISCELLANY

The winter promises to be very severe in France and the suffering is already becoming very great

Austria has lately manifested great delight at the recent German reverses, and especially at the evacuation of Orleans

Recruiting for the French has been going on in Strasbourg but the Prussians have discovered and broken up the recruiting office

The London Times expresses the opinion that the war would not end with the taking of Paris, so bitter is the feeling of the French against the Prussians

As an example of the general sympathy and aid extended to the wounded soldiers throughout France, a correspondent tells of a marquis who has fifteen patients in his splendid chateau, and who, assisted by his son, performs all the duties of hospital nurse

Should King William hold a review of his soldiers on the Champ de Mars, in Paris, it will not be the first in which he took part on that renowned parade ground More than half a century ago he was promoted there to field rank and took command of a battalion of the 1st Guards as a Prussian Major under his father's eyes

Several reputable ladies of Paris have sought to find means to fight on the battle fields around the city but as soon as their fighting list was filled up, it was found to consist largely of questionable patriotism and the project was given up These ladies it appears, were ready to sacrifice their lives but they could not risk their reputations

More projects to exterminate the Prussian invaders This time it consisted of the wearing, by French women, of a thimble charged with Prussic acid which had for its aim the puncture of a Prussian soldier's head with the poisoned thimble on a lady's shaking hands with him in welcome This idea was however abandoned, notwithstanding the apparent connection between Prussic acid and Prussia

The British iron trade, according to a Wolverhampton report, is sadly interfered with by the continuance of the determination of the French people to fight to the bitter end. The iron masters and hardware manufacturers loudly complain of this state of things The mischief is becoming widespread, the new and the old countries being alike affected It is shown that the disorganization of financial matters in Germany and France has begun to affect the American demand for iron because many of the American securities had to be negotiated in the territories now so fearfully disturbed. The Russian trade has been similarly affected

The Duke of Coburg is in mourning His son in law Adjutant Von Reuter died of the wounds which he had received at Sedan His body was brought to Coburg and buried there. The wife of the deceased is the first natural child of the Duke by an actress at Dresden to which she gave birth at the time the present Duke was still Prince Hereditary When Sermasim is found out that his legitimate wife was to remain without children he wished to recognize the illegitimate daughter and with the consent of the good natured Duchess she girl was received at court and educated as the legitimate child of the ducal couple Afterward she was married to Captain Von Reuter and the whole city of Coburg participated in the festivities of the wedding The Duke will evidently not treat his other illegitimate children in the same princely style—for he has so many says a German newspaper that Brigham Young would not be ashamed of such a family

THOMAS CARLYLE ON THE FRANCO PRUSSIAN WAR—The author of the Sartor Resartus and of the Life of Frederic the Great of Prussia is out with a two column article in the London Times on the war between France and Prussia That paper will be anxiously awaited here, by hundreds of thousands Thomas Carlyle on the war will be a sensation in literature Why cannot some of our enterprising book publishers have the whole two columns sent across the wires and converted into a book at once? It would be the most saleable book of the hour —N Y Herald

OREGON

A substantial bridge will be built across the Yamhill at McMinnville by F A Taylor

The railroad although it has not yet reached Albany is giving that place a great boost." All the houses are occupied and the value of property is rapidly increasing

The West Side the new paper started at McMinnville by Mr T B Handley, is a paper which promises to be a credit to him and to Yamhill county It presents a very neat appearance and its matter is exceedingly well made up

From the Albany Democrat On last Monday, the first train of cars passed the Santiam railroad bridge in safety Everything about the bridge is perfect and as solid as a rock and the train passed over it as smoothly as if it had been well kept track The citizens of Jefferson and vicinity made it the occasion of great jollity by observing three handsome flags to the Superintendent of Construction loaded two cars with iron rail and sent them over the bridge to convince all skeptical persons of its strength He then extended a general invitation to take a ride on the cars less than half a dozen however availed themselves of the privilege they wasn't on it Miss Mary Conner daughter of Jacob Conner the town proprietor was the heroine of the day and the occasion riding on the front platform of the locomotive as the first train went over the bridge, gracefully waving a beautiful flag It is only justice to say that the Santiam bridge, like the other bridges built by Mr Keeper for the Railroad Company is a superior and substantial piece of workmanship and architecture

Letter from President Lincoln

The Troy Press prints the following letter not heretofore published, from President Lincoln to the parents of Col Ellsworth

The letter bears Mr Lincoln's frank and is post marked Washington D C, May 27 1861

WASHINGTON D C May 25 1861

To Elmer Ellsworth and Mother of Col Elmer E Ellsworth

MY DEAR SIR AND MADAM—In the untimely loss of your noble son, our affliction here is scarcely less than your own So much of promised usefulness to one's country and of bright hopes for one's self and friends have never been so suddenly dashed as in his fall In so short a time and in youthful appearance a boy only his power to command men was surpassingly great This power, combined with a fine intellect and indomitable energy, and a taste all together military, constituted to him as seemed to me, the best natural talent in that department I ever knew And yet he was singularly modest and deferential in social intercourse My acquaintance with him began less than two years ago, yet, through the latter half of the intervening period, it was as intense as the disparity of our ages and my engrossing engagements would permit To me he appeared to have no indulgences or pastimes and I never heard him utter a profane or an intemperate word What was conclusive of his good heart, he never forgot his parents The honors he labored for so laudably, and in the sad end so gallantly gave his life he meant for them no less than for himself

In the hope that it may be no intrusion upon the sacredness of your sorrow I have ventured to address you this tribute to the memory of my young friend and your brave and early fallen son

May God give you the consolation which is beyond earthly power Sincerely your friend in a common affliction, A LINCOLN

FUNERAL ADVERTISING—The Chicago Post says

The scope of advertising enlarges constantly Not only are newspapers crowded and circulars sprinkled abroad like Autumn leaves, and all the picturesque and pleasant scenery posted over with vermilion puffs but the ingenious advertiser is constantly seeking unique methods of catching the public eye At a recent funeral in Des Moines Iowa, the minister after some pathetic remarks, inquired if any dear friend of the deceased wished to say anything on this solemn occasion A stranger here stepped forward, and, after expressing sympathy with the friends of the deceased remarked that the ways of Providence were inscrutable and in this connection he wished to say that he was the agent for a first-class article of hair vigor for the State of Iowa The corpse had used it for years with great advantage and he confidently recommended it, especially to the minister and the undertaker present as he perceived they were both painfully bald Shake the bottle gentlemen,' he exclaimed earnestly rising with the occasion and rub the matter well in with a stiff brush' At this stage of the proceedings a slight disturbance occurred and the hair vigor man disappeared

ARREST OF A NOTED CRIMINAL.
CUTLER, ALIAS BARDMAN ARRESTED AND IDENTIFIED BY L. SCHUTZMAN JR.
It is announced several days since that the Sheriff of Siskiyou county California had discovered and arrested Schultz the notorious robber and murderer who created so much excitement in that section last evening the under sheriff Mr Cutler arrived with Schultz in custody and delivered his prisoner to Sheriff Bills
It seems that Schultz had been in Siskiyou county three months The author ties say that when he knew him in Washington and Wright, who knew him in Washington county Wright asserted so confidently that the man was that the officers concluded to arrest him Mr Bills was telegraphed to some days prepared himself for such an emergency by a description Fortunately he had a gun furnished him with a revolver Cutler was taken when he least suspected danger and that there was no room for doubt and that the two men who took him had revolvers in his face he submitted quietly Before considerable further telegraphing Mr Bills started down with his prisoner in the stage and kept handcuffed He never asked when he wanted to know if he was going to Washington Territory It will be remembered that when he turned up here last spring he had just escaped from the penitentiary at Salem W T Sheriff Bills met the prisoner with his charge at the East Portland ferry took them in a coach and drove at once to the jail There is no doubt of his identity Mr Bills had a full description of Schultz's person and many unmistakable marks as well Wilson, who was his pal and fellow convict in California, Washington Territory and Oregon bears other unmistakable marks as well Wilson, was the figure on his breast of a woman horseback, the horse in the act of jumping a bunch of roses the figure printed in India ink An examination of the prisoner last evening revealed this figure wonderfully distinct This also gave other marks by which to identify him There are beside these proofs of identity several persons in the city who know Schultz well and they will be called upon to testify to his identity but the right man has been arrested and there will be remembered that a reward of $1,000 is offering for his arrest

Dear Ladies and Gents how do you do
Don t you all wish to buy something new?
A fine Watch made of silver or gold
(For the one you wear is too old!)
A chain ring, pin locket, or a fine set —
Then go to STONE S you ll find it, you bet

December is here, with her storms and her rain
And it makes the folks of cold weather complain
Hark ye dear gentlemen this need not be so
You can all be kept warm for O NEIL & CO
Can fit you so nicely, so snug and so warm
With CLOTHES that are proof against the bitter cold storm
And they sell them so cheaply that all who go there
Unlike Flora McFlimsey can find something to wear

The Summer is past and Autumn is here
The finest season throughout the whole year
But the days grow cool and all must prepare
For warmer Clothing in Winter to wear
Well KOHN & FISHEL of Clothing renown
Have the best supply ever brought to town
They have all sorts of coats an pants that will match
That will last a whole year and not need a patch
There are sacks vests and shirts and a thousand things more
Which they offer you cheaper than ever before
You all need the cloth and they need the tin,
The got a new suit and lot Winter goods in

Philosophy of Swearing.

Thinkers as Mr Mill would say, have not done justice to the great subject of profane swearing. They have come to the discussion in what the Comtists would call a theological spirit, by setting out the dictate of the irrelevant idea that because swearing is wicked, the instinctive crying of oaths, the passion for mixing them into the crevices of common speech, and the inability of any man to walk without the crutches of imprecation, he, therefore, betrays the dignity of philosophic research. Yet, in reality, few subjects will more richly reward, as thinkers would say, the labors of deductive and inductive study. Swearing is as universal sin. Just as every race and every individual makes use of some stimulant, whether it be tobacco or gossip, pugilism or sermon-hearing, dram-drinking or morning-calls, so all of us, whether pious or wicked, habitually swear in some of the thousand fashions which lie open to the wit or the stupidity of man. Men swear for the reason that children scream, because they lack a command of words, and because an oath, like a loud cry, has often the force of a whole sentence. Essentially, therefore, the genesis of profane swearing belongs to the province of the psychologist or the rhetorician, and not to that of the theologian. Hence profane swearing must be put down, not by sermons, but by lessons in correct thinking and good writing.

If we approach the discussion in the scientific spirit for which we are indebted to the example of La Philosophie Positive, we shall find that oaths do not stand by themselves in the hierarchy of moral science, but are generically related to every form of unscientific expression. When an illiterate Irishman answers a summons for the payment of his rent with the threat that, "by Saint Patrick," he will let daylight through his landlord's head, he means of course to use the most potent form of words within the compass of his vocabulary. But outside the range of imprecation, his armory of phrases is very small and ill-furnished. The bald statement of the fact that he means to shoot his landlord would, he feels, be as feeble and prosaic as the mandate of a bank check, "Pay to John Smith, or bearer, the sum of one hundred pounds sterling;" and, discerning the weakness of such a phrase, an Irishman would like to make the check emphatic by adding a threat and an oath; so that the summons to the banker would run thus: "If you don't pay the money, then, by Saint Patrick, I will shoot you the next time I am in town." Now here, as Mr. Mill would say, the appeal to Saint Patrick "connotes" a profound store of inarticulate resolution. What the Irishman means to imply is something like this: Saint Patrick is the patron saint of the island that owns me. He is the symbol, both of my own land and of that Heavenly guardianship which, despite the base Saxon, has made the Green Isle the first country on earth, and her people the flower of the human race. Saint Patrick is my especial saint—the only saint whom I can couple with the solemnities of the invisible or potheon. Hence, when I call upon Saint Patrick to witness that I will shoot my landlord or my banker, I offer the attestation of all those elements of my nature which are religious and Irish; I mean to say that I will keep my word, as surely as I believe in Saint Patrick and belong to the Green Isle.

Such, when analyzed, is the assurance conveyed by the Hibernian oath. The oath saves him from the trouble of thinking with clearness, and expressing his meaning with precision. It is a symbol which vaguely gives emphasis. Oaths, therefore, have justly been called the links of the vulgar. When a young lady wishes to make any part of a letter particularly emphatic, she feels that her command over the forms of rhetoric is too small to convey the requisite verbal force; so she follows the example of the Irishman, and resorts to a mechanical device, by underscoring the words on which she means the reader to lay special stress. That is the fashion in which she swears. Hence, the quantity of imprecation in the epistles of pious and half-educated young ladies is appalling. And even professional men of letters often betray a like inability to say what they mean without resorting to such vague symbols as the "Saint Patrick" of the illiterate Hibernian, or the under-scoring of the boarding school Miss. A like infirmity of expression makes the French people habitually resort to what we may term oaths of gesticulation. Their distinctive mark as talkers is their inability to speak for five minutes without shrugging their shoulders. None but a Frenchman, or rather a French woman, can raise the shoulders with that quick, graceful jerk, and lift the eyebrows with that air of bland bewilderment, and cover the face with that air of baffled wisdom, which constitute the shrug of good society. Some future Darwin, when tracing the genesis of national manners will expend volumes to prove that, just as ages were needed for the transformation of monkeys into men, so it took ages of breeding to give that special plumey of fibre, that litheness of muscle, that sensitiveness of nerve, which we find revealed in the capacity to condense a sentence or a page into an epigram of gesticulation. Yet the shrug belongs to the same family as the oath, since it substitutes a mechanical form of expression for that constantly changing and essentially individual device of phrase which demands precision of thought and style. When a Frenchman is asked why Bazaine has not gone away from Metz in a balloon to organize the Gardes Mobile, why the Francs-Tireurs do not cut to pieces the railway lines on the way from Paris to the Rhine, or why Victor Hugo fancies that he can save France by marks of exclamation, the puzzled listener shrugs his shoulders, and thus implies, "The thing is unaccountable, monsieur; the plans of M. Gambetta are as inscrutable as the functions of the east wind; fate seems to have cursed La Belle France, and the situation is execrable." An Englishman or an American would answer such a question by letting off a heavy oath, just as, when the safety-valve is lifted, an engine lets off steam. Yet the profane exclamation would mean no more than the shrug of the Frenchman. He swears with his shoulders, while his less refined neighbors swear with their mouths. Of course he is also enriched with an armory of verbal oaths, which he wields with much more effect than he has recently handled the Chassepot; but that armory is only an auxiliary force, and his inexhaustible store of shrugs gives him command over the resources of imprecation, to which, as Macaulay would have said the history of profane swearing presents no parallel.

If men swear at all, they ought to swear well. We mean, not that they should swear profusely, but that they should aim at originality and variety of style. In England there is little or no chance that swearing will improve in style, because the art has now been cast aside by men of education, and has been left to the illiterate and profane. In such countries as Italy, on the other hand, the art has been saved from decline by the past piety of the Italian people, and by the exceptionally rich deposits of theological or mythological tradition. An Italian peasant can swear by any one of the thousand saints with whom he has been made acquainted by the Church, and some of whom the Church has borrowed from heathendom, so that he blasphemes with a strength borrowed from the piety of all past ages. An English peasant, on the contrary, knows nothing about saints, those of England having all been killed three hundred years ago by Henry VIII., and thus the poor fellow is thrown back on the resources of his own wit. So also, it is true, are the people of America, who left all saints and other relics of Popery behind them when they set sail in the Mayflower to make themselves subject to the Constitution of the United States, and who have subsequently discouraged the manufacture of saints, lest such a branch of industry should menace republican institutions. But for the lack of a hagiology America has more than made up by the mutual activity of her people, and by the culture of the men who lead her swearing population.

While England has left the art of imprecation to cab-men, coal-heavers, and men who go to music-halls, America still commits it to her lawyers, Senators, and regular attendants at church. A citizen of the United States finds a command over the resources of profane speech compatible with a fervent profession of faith in Roman Catholicism or Universalism. And even when men have been educated at Harvard, when they have listened to the lectures of Mr. Lowell, and when their scholastic culture would escape reproach in England, they resort to the emphasis of imprecation. Thus the swearing of American, and especially that of the South and the far West, displays an originality of conception, and a variety of image, for which we look in vain when the emphasis of oaths is merely the last refuge of ignorance. Indeed, it might plausibly be argued that if America would devote as much vigor of mind and skill of phrase to writing as to profane swearing, a single generation would suffice to take away the reproach that she is destitute of a great literature. She wastes in vague curses the vocabulary of a Shakspeare. Preacher might also and fault with the habit on the ground that to blaspheme is as wicked as to steal; but obeying the dictate of Auguste Comte, we deprive with the guidance of the theological spirit, and we confine the Transcendental habit of imprecation to the second state, it belongs a want of real culture and precision of mind that it fosters looseness of thought, and that it proclaims a whole nation so to lack the faculty of exact expression as to be dependent for emphasis on the machinery of oaths. The Americans obey one literary canon by swearing so well, but they sin against a greater literary canon by swearing at all. To America there will come a day in which the school of religion and the school of rhetoric will work so harmoniously that a Senator or a member of Mr. Beecher's church will deem it as degrading to use an oath as to make a slip in grammar. Impressions will some day be as rare as indelicacies of style. The Spectator.
